

Abstract

The invention relates to a portable data carrier with at least one removable mini smart card embedded therein and a removable module. According to the invention the module and the mini smart card are connected with the bottom of a gap of the card body by means of detachable adhesive.